Building Better Diversification

Investors concerned about market volatility may benefit by incorporating a conservative global fixed-income approach into their portfolios.

A Globally Diverse Portfolio

There are many high-quality fixed-income investments beyond the US. The Hartford World Bond Fund invests primarily in conservative global government bonds, while also seeking other opportunistic sources of return.

Stronger Returns in Volatile Markets

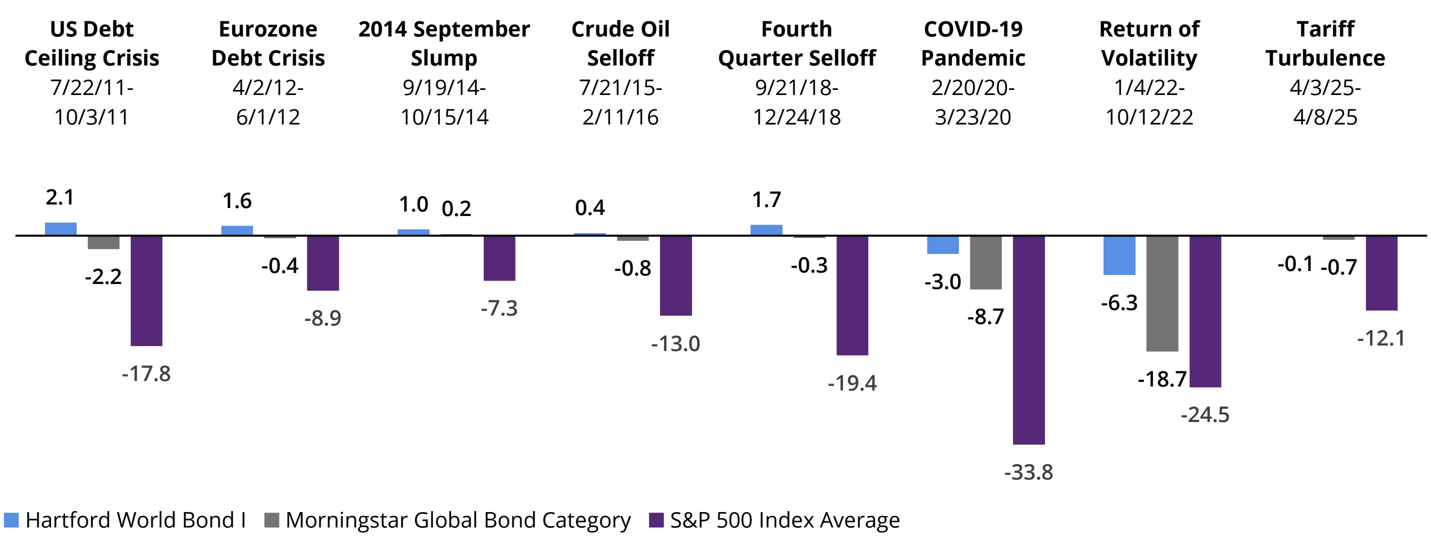
Investments that can help dampen market volatility play a crucial role in investor portfolios. The Fund has historically provided attractive returns during most volatile equity markets.

Trusted Fixed-Income Expertise

The Fund is sub-advised by Wellington Management, an asset manager with $571 billion in fixed-income assets worldwide (as of 9/30/2025).* They have also managed global bond portfolios for more than 25 years.

Historically Attractive Performance During Turbulent Equity Markets

Performance During S&P 500 Index Drawdowns (%)



Source: Morningstar, 1/26. S&P 500 Index drawdowns are measured from peak to trough since 5/31/11, the inception date of Hartford World Bond Fund.

Past performance does not guarantee future results. The S&P 500 Index is not the Fund's benchmark and is used to represent the US equity market. Many bond funds underperform the S&P 500 when equity markets performance is positive. For illustrative purposes only.

Diversification does not ensure a profit or protect against a loss in a declining market.

Important Risks: Investing involves risk, including the possible loss of principal. Security prices fluctuate in value depending on general market and economic conditions and the prospects of individual companies. • Fixed income security risks include credit, liquidity, call, duration, and interest-rate risk. As interest rates rise, bond prices generally fall. • Foreign investments, including foreign government debt, may be more volatile and less liquid than U.S. investments and are subject to the risk of currency fluctuations and adverse political, economic and regulatory developments. These risks may be greater, and include additional risks, for investments in emerging markets or if the Fund focuses in a particular geographic region or country. • Investments in high-yield ("junk") bonds involve greater risk of price volatility, illiquidity, and default than higher-rated debt securities. • Mortgage-related and asset-backed securities' risks include credit, interest-rate, prepayment, and extension risk. • Derivatives are generally more volatile and sensitive to changes in market or economic conditions than other securities; their risks include currency, leverage, liquidity, index, pricing, valuation, and counterparty risk. • Because the Fund is non-diversified, it may invest in a smaller number of issuers, and may be more exposed to risks and volatility than a more broadly diversified fund. • Restricted securities may be more difficult to sell and price than other securities. • Obligations of U.S. Government agencies are supported by varying degrees of credit but are generally not backed by the full faith and credit of the U.S. Government. • The portfolio managers may allocate a portion of the Fund's assets to specialist portfolio managers, which may not work as intended. • The Fund may have high portfolio turnover, which could increase its transaction costs and an investor's tax liability. • The purchase of securities in the To-Be-Announced (TBA) market can result in higher portfolio turnover, which could increase transaction costs and an investor's tax liability. The risks associated with the TBA market include price and counterparty risk.
